Message from the President

As we celebrate 70 years of glorious journey of Delhi Management Association, I feel proud to lead this one of the oldest and most prestigious management associations of the country. It is not only the time for celebrations but to remember our founders who built an institution that championed dissemination of management knowledge and best practices long before “continuous learning” became a mantra. Let us rededicate ourselves to their vision and values for which they built this institution. Many of our past presidents, other office bearers and managing committee members have done excellent work and kept the DMA flag flying high among the management fraternity. This year, we honour that legacy while accelerating into a more digital, more connected, and more impact-oriented future.

Dr. Navneet Kumar Sharma, President

Over the past year, we stabilized our finances, broadened our program calendar, and strengthened DMA's national presence. From entrepreneurship and supply chain management to ESG, CSR and emotional intelligence to artificial intelligence and the future of work, our flagship conferences/ summits and roundtables encouraged young generation and created practical takeaways, not just good conversations.

The road ahead is about scale and measurable outcomes. We intend to expand the Government–Industry–Academia interface, enabling policy dialogues and problems solving cohorts. We also intend to conduct MDP Programmes, provide internships to business school and technical institutions' students and open Chapters of DMA in these institutions. In the coming year, we have also planned to launch a new website with online membership facility, search engine capability for facilitating networking among members and provision for members keeping their details updated.

I invite every member to lean in - mentor a young professional, lead a special-interest circle, speak at a session, co-author a paper, host a visit, or sponsor a pathway as DMA's strength has always been its community of doers. My gratitude to the Managing Committee, Office Bearers, Committee Chairs, our secretariat, speakers, sponsors, and partner institutions for their steadfast support. Together, let us build DMA of future defined by innovation, inclusion, and results that matter to our management fraternity.

With warm regards,

Dr. Navneet Kumar Sharma
